WE GET IT.

For life sciences companies, enterprise value as established by innovative research and therapies can be fleeting. Care must first be given to protect the corporate and brand value. Once sufficient governance capabilities have been established, the organization can then focus on strategies to enhance enterprise value. Baker Tilly supports our clients by:

- Creating value plans that emphasize governance and control to protect value and creating stable strategies enhancing value through commercial and medical affairs
- Recognizing the uniqueness of innovative therapies, challenging the business models surrounding market and patient access activities such as:
 - patient support programs
 - patient advocacy
 - market access and real-world evidence
 - research collaborations
- Designing optimal market-facing commercial and medical affairs operations that mitigate compliance risks, while aligning to physician, hospital and patient needs
- Leverage data insights and analytics to establish strategy, measure performance and mitigate risks
